

Patient: Maxx

Diagnosis: Cerebral Palsy

Hope this email finds you well. Firstly, I apologize for not writing sooner. I wanted to thank you for the work you are doing. When my husband and I decided to go to see you we were quite anxious and worried, etc. I know you have heard it all before.

My update on Maxx is positive. We have seen subtle changes in him from a few days after the treatment. These included opening his hands more, he seems to have more trunk control, a little less tightness in his legs.

We had not discussed our plans for stem cell treatment with any of his therapists for several reasons. Main one being we wanted to see if they noticed a difference. They all have reported back that they feel him looser. That he has more control of his head and trunk.
